

Case Study 2: Travel Trouble

Anisa and Parsa already use sustainable options for local travel and commuting. However, they love to canoe and hike in locations that are only accessible by road.

They would like to buy an electric vehicle, but are worried about finding charging stations close enough to remote areas, and also wonder if that is the most sustainable choice when it comes to vacations.

Challenge: Redesign this couple's vacation through a design for social justice and green design lens.

